

SPONSORSHIP FORM

The Emerging Leaders Alliance seeks to foster leadership in the engineering and scientific community through professional leadership training. In addition to technical competency, today's engineering leaders need broad skills to meet the real problems facing mankind, including energy, sustainability and health care.

Through intensive, online pre-work, in-person training sessions, and a continuing online community forum, the Alliance seeks to build upon its mission by promoting career advancement of professionals and the engagement of engineering and scientific leadership in societal concerns. For more information about this program visit www.emergingleadersalliance.org.

If your company would like to support this program, please consider becoming a sponsor at one of the following levels*. Sponsorship will promote your company to the engineering and scientific community and the upcoming engineering leaders, and let them know that effective leadership is important to the future of your company and industry.
